

First International Conference on Pavement Preservation

Background

Plan to attend the First International Conference on Pavement Preservation (ICPP), during the week of April 12 – 16, 2010, in Newport Beach, California, at the Radisson Hotel. The ICPP will bring together researchers and experts working in the field of pavement preservation to exchange ideas and discuss critical issues and concerns. This will be a “don’t-miss” event for anyone in the pavement preservation field.

The conference is sponsored and co-organized by Caltrans, the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) and the Foundation for Pavement Preservation (FP2). Other agencies participating in the planning of the conference include the California Pavement Preservation (CP2) Center, the National Center for Pavement Preservation (NCPPI), and the University of California, Berkeley. Non-participating sponsors include TRB, APWA, NACE, and the IRF.

Program features

- Benefits of pavement preservation (economic and environmental)
- Integration of pavement preservation into pavement management
- Pavement preservation treatments for flexible pavements (design, materials, constructability, and performance)
- Pavement preservation treatments for rigid pavements (design, materials, constructability, and performance)
- Strategy selection
- Funding pavement preservation
- Promoting pavement preservation to the public and our elected leaders

The program will consist of peer-reviewed papers and selected invited presentations. Highlights of the conference are to include case studies of preservation from U.S. highway agencies, industry, and international organizations. The presentations are expected to take place on April 13 – 15, 2010, with workshops and/or demonstrations to take place on April 12 and 16.

Abstracts have been reviewed by the Technical Committee based on quality and relevance and authors of the abstracts selected were invited to submit full papers to be included in the conference proceedings. Full papers are to be submitted electronically using the conference website at www.pavementpreservation.org/icpp/ by July 15, 2009. Full papers will be reviewed by the Technical Committee for selections to be included in the conference proceedings or in the Pavement Preservation Journal. The final camera-ready papers are due on November 1, 2009. The official language of the conference will be English for both papers and presentations. Papers from the conference will be included in conference proceedings and/or a CD.

Who should attend?

Consulting engineers, pavement producers and contractors, DOT and public works officials, representatives of federal agencies, material suppliers and academia. Registration information for the conference and the hotel should be available in September 2009 on the conference website. Registrations will be handled by the University of California at Berkeley. For information on registration, please e-mail conferences@techtransfer.berkeley.edu.

Sponsorships still available

Sponsorships are offered to support networking and educational opportunities at the conference. Support the conference by being a sponsor and get a great public relations benefit as well. Your company will be recognized at the meeting for its generosity. For more information on sponsorship, please e-mail conferences@techtransfer.berkeley.edu.

The beach and water are warm, even in April.

Conference contact information

Please visit the conference website at www.pavementpreservation.org/icpp for more information including exhibiting and sponsorship opportunities.

Information on registration or sponsorship conferences@techtransfer.berkeley.edu

Conference co-chairs

Shakir Shatnawi, California Department of Transportation, shakir.shatnawi@dot.ca.gov

James Sorenson, FHWA, Office of Asset Management, james.sorenson@fhwa.dot.gov

Bill O'Leary, Foundation for Pavement Preservation, bill.oleary@martinmlp.com

The marina is near the Raddison Hotel, where the conference will be held.

First International Conference on Pavement Preservation

Newport Beach, California

April 12 – 16, 2010

The Raddison Hotel welcomes conference participants to Newport Beach.

