RESEARCH INVOLVING HUMAN PARTICIPANTS:

Carefully think about your project and consider what you will ask participants to do. You want to be sure that everyone who participates in your project is protected from physical and mental discomfort and harm. A good question to ask yourself is, "How would I feel if I were participating in this activity?" Be courteous and respectful to those who participate in your project. Remember that each individual is helping you by participating in your project. Respect a person's freedom to decline to participate. Do not force anyone to be part of your project against their wish. We will comply with these requirements if we use human participants. YES _____

The signers below have read the liability release statement above. In addition, the signatures testify that the project is done by the student (s) and that proper acknowledgement is given for any assistance received. INCOMPLETE APPLICATIONS WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED.
